Minneapolis, MN, 10/18/2021 – Last Thursday’s “CRUNCH TIME” meeting at “People’s Plaza” (across from City Hall) was a non-event. “No one else had showed up by 3:30, when I left,” said the organizer, Minneapolis Mayoral candidate Bob “Again” Carney Jr. (“bobagain”,) who added “Unfortunately, I apparently missed fellow Mayoral candidate Jerrell Perry by minutes.

“Last week was CRUNCH TIME – but this week we’re OUT OF TIME,” bobagain concluded as he considered the prospect of any joint campaigning or any organized effort to effect the election of anyone other than Mayor Frey. In a Sunday Star Tribune letter to the editor, bobagain advised voters who see “public safety/no on Charter Question #2” as their deciding priority: “Here’s the crucial practical issue: As long as you don’t rank Nezhad, Knuth, or any ‘yes on 2’ candidate ahead of Frey, then as trailing candidates are eliminated during the vote-counting process your vote will end up counting to re-elect Frey. But with this approach, you’ll also learn something from listening to other candidates — and your vote for alternative candidates will promote and advance the ideas and issues we’re raising.”

He commented: “As with the 1920 U.S. presidential election, this year Minneapolis seems desperate for a ‘return to normalcy.’ For whatever reason, public joint campaigning won’t work this year. I’ll be switching to Zoom campaigning this week, with a segue to my already-ongoing campaign the 2022 Governor’s race.” Recently, due to a medical issue, bobagain has stopped driving a school bus – he is currently working for his company doing bus driver recruiting, and plans to resume bus driving in February of 2022.
